Thief With Artistic Bent Walks the Halls of OU

A thief or thieves with an artistic bent is walking the halls of Omaha University.

Two cut designs were taken from an exhibition in the Administration Building, and one water color painting was taken from an exhibit in the Student Center Building.

John Page, art department head, said the "Artist of the Month" series will continue despite the thefts. He said a glass case may be used to house future art works.

Another theft was reported by the Air Force ROTC department. A 16mm Ampro sound projector was taken from a projection booth between rooms 187 and 197 in the Administration Building.

Since the projector is government property, the matter constitutes a Federal case and will require FBI investigation.

Don Pflasterer, dean of student personnel, said: "Although there has been some vandalism and petty thievery on campus, the two are actually on the decline." He said control is difficult because of the different class schedules and large student body.

"We assume that the students going to OU are mature individuals and don't need a watch dog," he added. "These incidents are caused by a minority, and the majority of the students doesn't need to suffer."

Pflasterer stated a coat check has been set up in the Student Center to discourage thieves and that activities cards are being checked to insure that only properly enrolled students are using University facilities.

Any act of theft or vandalism is punishable by expulsion or disciplinary probation and repair of damages.

Debate Tourney Coming to OU

Schools from nine states will compete at OU March 20-21 in a qualifying debate tournament to select finalists from this district for the National West Point Debate Tourney.

From 33 schools in this area, 12 will be chosen to compete in the qualifying tourney. The six top teams will go on to participate in the tourneys at West Point, N. Y.

Schools are selected for competition on the basis of their past record in debate competition.

Despite a mediocre record, "there is a good chance we will be in the tournament," Dr. Aldrich Paul, faculty advisor, said. "Omaha University's record is equal to just about any team from this area."

Schools competing will be from Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Each school participating will be represented by a two-man team and two judges.

SAACS Will Hear Of Color Process

Chemical aspects of the production and processing of color film will be discussed at a student affiliate meeting of the American Chemical Society this Thursday.

Marvin Schuman, formerly with Eastman Kodak, will be the featured speaker at the 4 p.m. meeting in room Adm. 307.

Recently elected SAACS officers include: Ted Hoff, president; Donald Hudgens, vice president, and Thomas Doherty, secretary-treasurer.

'Prisoner' Will Be Seen Wednesday

"The Prisoner," starring Alex Guinness and Jack Hawkins, will be the next movie shown in the Student Center.

Set against the background of a police state, the film portrays Guinness as a Roman Catholic Cardinal, who is arrested for treason.

"The Prisoner" will be shown in rooms 312 A-B in the Student Center, Wednesday at 3:30 p.m.

Everything from 'A to Z' in Distinguished Lecture Series

A new College of Adult Education community service course designed to teach a little bit about almost everything began this week. The course entitled "The Legacy of Man . . . The Liberal Arts . . . From A to Z" is described as a distinguished series of lectures and discussions.

Lectures are scheduled for each Tuesday at 8 p.m. through April 18. The sessions will be held in the Adult Conference Center Auditorium. They feature chairmen of various University departments speaking about their particular fields.

Art Function Lost

John Page, head of OU's art department, began the series Feb. 14.

Mr. Page said the modern art has lost its traditional function. He said cultures "have always developed a modern art. An art that gives form to the aspirations and beliefs of the whole people; an art that is understood by everyone because it mirrors the image of the society."

Vital Art a Must

But with the Industrial Revolution, the artist became detached from society, and stepped into the stereotyped role of the "long hair," he said, adding that the artist's image is a subjective one and people tend to be satisfied with the objective image, especially since the invention of the camera.

"If our way of life is to prevail," Page said, "we must have a vital art." He said a culture cannot mature without an expressed image. "And the artist is the only one who can give expression to the aspirations and beliefs of our time," Mr. Page concluded.

Biology Next

The Legacy of Man series will provide an opportunity to sample broadly many areas of the University's liberal arts curriculum. The principal emphasis of each program will be the current scene as related to historical events.

The second session, Feb. 21, will be presented by Professor Karl Busch, head of OU's biology department. The subject will concern biology and its contributions to scientific knowledge.

Registration for the series is $5. Individual programs may be attended at a cost of $1 each. A schedule of the series, containing a brief description of each program, may be obtained from the Office of General Printing and Information, in Room 176 of the Administration Building.

Marston Hears . . .

. . . Caniglia Speaks

Athletic Program 'Fine for Now, Inadequate for Future'

Football proponents continued their quest for increased funds at last Tuesday's Activities Committee hearing.

Head Coach Al Caniglia described present expenditures as "well justified," adding that he thought "more can be used."

He said the grant-in-aid program, inaugurated two years ago, is "adequate for now" but for the future "it is not good."

"For not too much of an increase we could have quite a bit more," he said.

The recruiting aim, according to Mr. Caniglia, is "to bring the better students to OU, athletes who can attain high scholastic averages in keeping with the ideals of the University of Omaha."

Terming the supply of football players a "market," he said the larger, more generous schools are vying for the Omaha-area athletes "and are willing to pay for them."

As a result, he pointed out, OU must go elsewhere—such as the junior colleges in Kansas—for its players.

Because of the non-resident tuition, double the fee of an Omaha, it would be necessary to give one athlete two grants to provide a "full-ride."

"We can't do this because it would reduce the number of grants available," the coach declared.

Seeking a median between "extravagant big-time football and schools which make the sport dull," Athletic Director Virgil Yelkin said his program is aimed at being "a good little guy."

He emphasized that grants-in-aid utilize "not one penny of the taxpayers' money."

Monies for athletic scholarships come from activities fees, gate receipts and special gifts, he said.

Heated discussion, expected by many, failed to materialize at the session.

At one point, however, when Dr. William Jaynes, committee recorder, attempted to discredit the average expenditure figures compiled by the National Collegiate Athletic Association and quoted by both Yelkin and Caniglia, the football coach replied:

"I respect your figures but not your knowledge of football."

At the same time, Dr. Kennedy described the point made by Dr. Jaynes as "loaded."

In what appeared to be the most effective defense of the sport, Assistant Coach Ken Fisher told of his "invaluable benefit" gained through a four-thousand-dollar scholarship received while playing football at the University of Nebraska.

Sometimes emotional, he said he believed that he, as well as two brothers who received similar grants, has "already repaid to the state of Nebraska the value received."

He cited his work with boys as a coach and his brother Rex's medical work at Children Hospital. He also made comment on brother Cletus's success as a coach.

"I can't convince you if you don't like the game," he concluded. "I only know what it did for me and my family."

Dr. George Harris declared, in what Chairman Marston termed "a good note to end on," that he would never have attended a university which did not have a football team and that his son "will never attend such a school."

Lambi Resigns, Higley Named

Dr. Ivo Lambi, after a year at the University of Omaha as an instructor in history, has resigned.

His resignation and that of Mrs. Margaret M. Miller, assistant instructor in English, both effective August 31, were accepted by the Board of Regents at its regular meeting Thursday.

Wayne M. Higley, now working on his Ph. D. requirements at the University of Illinois, was approved by the board as an instructor in accounting.

Naomi Coryell was named an interne in history, Alice Hadsell, an interne in the reading clinic and Gayle Chapman Morrow will be an assistant instructor in English.

Biggest item on the Board's docket was the re-hiring of 49 faculty members.

Continued on a contractual agreement for 1961-62 were:

Assistant Professors Paul Gardner, Herbert Jones, Robert C. Keppel, Kenneth Nehmer, John Newien, Melvin Olson, James Toggart and Paul Therkildsen.

"Okay for now . . .

Chi Omega Gives Valentine Party For Handicapped

Twenty-five handicapped children from the J. P. Lord School and the Red Cross Handicapped Swim Program were entertained at a Valentine Party by Chi Omega sorority in the Student Center Wednesday.

"To give the children a realization and understanding of the outside world was the purpose of the party," said Charon Allen, chairman of the party committee. The program included a skit and a magician. Valentines were made and exchanged by the children.

As part of its social and civic program, Chi O has entertained handicapped children annually for four years.

"The affair is beneficial for the girls as well as the children," Miss Allen said.

Other committee members were Donna Hoffman, Judy Houk and Daphne Robins.

Classes at OU may be selected from more than 50 course designations in five colleges.

Beyond 30

Question Emerges: Can 56 Act as One?

By Ken Zimmerman

Three divergent attitudes have been displayed during the last couple sessions of the Activities Study Committee.

—Phillip Vogt, chairman of the athletics division, frankly admitted that he is "biased." He, in jest I presume, said that if he would have his way he would abolish all athletics with the exception of golf.

—Mrs. John Merriam, a member of the Board of Regents, concurred with Mr. Vogt but added that she is "anxious to be convinced" otherwise.

—Dr. George Harris, on the other hand, declared that when he was deciding on his move to OU he was "influenced" by the Tangerine Bowl championship, that as a student he would never have attended a college which did not play football. He further emphasized that his son would not attend such an institution.

Cross-Section Present

Those views, I feel, may be taken as the scope of those held by the committee collectively.

Well and good—we've got the necessary cross-section of opinion to hear and adjudicate the case. No one may claim that the committee is "packed."

But there are more than the three above-mentioned minds at work in evaluating our activities program. Not just a few more, there's 53 others who must come up with a single, unified recommendation.

Golfers Play Football?

Perhaps Mrs. Merriam can be convinced—one way or the other—but can 15 others who now share her view reach the same conclusion?

Can the theoretical 15 who would rather play golf with Mr. Vogt be reconciled with Dr. Harris' football advocates?

In my humble opinion, the most significant question voiced at last Tuesday's meeting had no direct bearing on football. It was rather bluntly posed by Dr. Paul Kennedy:

"Just what are we supposed to be doing?" he asked with an air of exasperation.

Here's Question

His feelings, I'm sure, must be typical of those being experienced by many—both committee members and observers.

Can this 56-member board be expected to sit and think as a single body? Can they sift the myriad of statistics, opinions and expressions then stand as one, confidently proclaiming: "Here is what must be done."

Colonel Marston, in answering Dr. Kennedy's question, explained the committee's function as "to study the entire co-curricular program and judge what is best for this university."

Whether or not 56 persons can achieve a unanimity often not found in a committee of three is something to which I can only say: "I'll believe it when I see it."

Golden to Talk At Next 'Nights'

The "University Nights" series is suggested by the College of Adult Education as the answer to Friday nights.

American author-humorist Harry Golden will lecture tonight from his home in Charlotte, N.C., via a direct telephone hookup to an OU audience.

Poet Carl Sandburg indicated, that motion picture commitments permitting, he will join the discussion to make a three-way program.

Professor Ellen Lord will mediate the discussion, to be held in the Conference Center at 8 p.m. Season memberships for the twelve "University Nights" lectures is $7, or individual lectures may be attended for $1 each.

Chapel Used, Original Plan Was Opposed

The new chapel in the Student Center received its first use this week when the Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership fraternity, initiated two OU students as members.

Bob Everett and Bob Wittekind were initiated in a ceremony last Wednesday.

Due to opposition against including a chapel in the Center five years ago when building plans were being discussed, the chapel was almost left out of the plans, according to Glen Lewis, chairman of the Student Center Building Committee.

Mr. Lewis said that such arguments were brought forth that OU is a municipal university and shouldn't have any religious attachment. Another argument, he said, was that since most of the students live at home and usually go to their own churches, they wouldn't need a chapel as a home away from home.

The original idea for the chapel was to make it large enough for students to hold weddings in it and called for a seating capacity for 50 persons, Mr. Lewis said.

However, plans for other areas in the Center were expanded and the chapel area was reduced to a seating capacity of 25.

Original plans also called for two windows, one with a Star of David on it, the other with a cross. This was later changed to one window of stained glass, said Mr. Lewis.

The chapel was completed in December except for a stained glass window and altar which should be installed in the near future according to Don Pflasterer, dean of student personnel.

Dean Pflasterer said the chapel can be used by students any time during the day for meditation and prayer.

Library Has Nice Figures

By BILL GROW

The most impressive figures on the Omaha University campus can be found in the library.

This is supposing that students' intentions are scholarly, rather than amorous. The figures referred to here are those describing to total number of books checked out of the library from September 1960 through last month. If the total figure of 18,000 is any indication, then OU students appear to be on the scholarly side.

Ellen Lord, head librarian, pointed out that this figure puts OU ahead of the national average in use of campus libraries. She also pointed out that the use of OU's library facilities by more than 14,000 students and faculty members puts the University on the same level or above that of other campuses.

Miss Lord believes the reason for this is the modern building and facilities which are offered at the library. Since the opening of the building in January of 1956, and the adoption of the open stack system of checking out books, the use of the library has more than tripled.

The old system, used when the library was housed in what is now the registrar's office, was the closed stack system and was a tedious process, said Miss Lord. It was necessary to select the number of the desired book from the card catalog and give it to a library worker, she said.

The number was then sent to another library worker who found the book and sent it to the borrower, via a small elevator.

"The more relaxed method of being able to walk in among the book shelves and select the book desired has caused more students to take advantage of the well-stocked building," said the librarian.

Class Depends on Snow Depth

Editor's Note: Temperatures neared the 50-degree mark as this was being written Wednesday but, being only too familiar with Omaha's winters, it seemed nevertheless appropriate to include it this week.

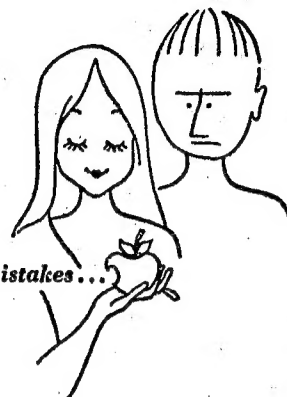

Cancellation of classes due to heavy snowfalls is dependent upon one factor—the ability to keep drives and parking lots clear.

Snow removal chores will this year be handled, as in the past, by the Dugdale Construction Company.

Clarence Lefler, superintendent of buildings and grounds, predicted that the chances of a university shutdown are slim despite what happened during last year's winter season.

"Dugdale's equipment is constantly on call," he said. "Only in the event of the severest of storms would their facilities be inadequate."

Cagers Grab Two Straight, Face Creighton Tomorrow

Omaha University, who won its last two games, will tackle a tough Creighton crew tomorrow night at the field house.

The Indians started the second semester with a flourish dropping Forts Hays 69-65 and Morningside 89-75.

The Fort Hays win was the first Central Intercollegiate Conference basketball triumph for the Indians. The Tribe had dropped 17 straight since joining the conference last season.

Sam Sims, in his first appearance as a varsity member, dropped in 21 points against the Kansans. Wendell Wiksell added 17.

Three Over Twenty

Three players scored over 20 points in the win over Morningside.

Sims, again led the Indians in scoring with 23 markers. Bruce Hunter and Wendell Wiksell netted 22 and 21 points respectively.

The 89 point output against Morningside was the highest for the Indians this season.

The Indians trailed 47-43 at the half.

Creighton Here

Creighton moves into the Indian contest fresh from a 82-66 victory over St. Ambrose Tuesday.

The Bluejays routed the Indians 107-67 in the first meeting earlier.

The Indians, though, have added rugged Glenn Hepburn, Sims and Bill Marshall.

The Indians will entertain strong Drake University Tuesday Feb. 21.

Washburn will furnish the competition as the Omahans close out the 1960-61 season Thursday, Feb. 23.

Wiksell Leads

Wendell Wiksell has taken the scoring leadership from Sophomore guard Joe Nueberger. Wiksell now has 225 points in 16 games while Nueberger has 215 in 19 games.

OU Adds Drake To Grid Schedule

Omaha University's football squad will play a home-and-home series with Drake University starting this fall.

The Bulldogs will be here Nov. 18 to finish the Indian season.

The 1962 contest will be played on the Iowans' gridiron.

Colorado State of Greeley, Colo., has been added to replace Adams State. Drake replaces Idaho State.

All five Indian home games will be played on campus.

Fort Hays will be the first Central Intercollegiate foe.

Schedule: Sept. 16, Morningside; 23, Colorado State; 30, at Colorado Mines; Oct. 14, at Fort Hays; 21, at Emporia State; 28, St. Benedict's; Nov. 4, Washburn; 11, at Pittsburg; 18, Drake.

OU wrestlers had their best year in 1959-60 winning seven meets while losing only three and tying one.

Studies Stop Two Mat Men

Russ Gorman's wrestling squad suffered a double loss last weekend.

The first loss came Friday afternoon when coach Gorman learned that two of his top wrestlers, Louie Miloni and Andre McWilliams, will be ineligible to compete the second semester because of scholastic difficulties.

The second loss was in a match with Northern Illinois on Saturday 20-15.

Roy Conrad, NCAA champ in the 177 pound division from Northern Illinois is "the best there is," according to coach Gorman. He pinned Arch Ferguson in the heavyweight division.

The OU grapplers will travel to Graceland Friday. "They will be tough," coach Gorman said.

Those winning for OU were Bob Brown by forfeit, Bob Tallman by a decision 10-5, and George Crenshaw by a pin.

Mel Masek wrestled to a draw.

OU Trackmen Finish Last; Conference Meet Is Next

The Central Intercollegiate Conference indoor track meet will be held at Omaha University next Friday and Saturday.

The Indian trackmen were defeated by South Dakota University and Hastings College in a triangular at OU, Feb. 9. Team totals were: South Dakota, 53 1/2; Hastings, 39 1/6; and Omaha, 36 1/3.

Roger Sayers was once more the individual sparkler for the Tribe. The speedy freshman won the 60 yard dash, the 440 yard dash and the 60 yard low hurdles.

He also placed second in the broadjump.

The Indians were blanked in the high hurdles, mile, two mile and the shotput.

Dunning Second

Dennis Dunning ran second in the 880 yard run. Gene Kluck of South Dakota finished first with a time of 1:57.8. South Dakota won four events and displayed the best overall balance.

A pleasant surprise for Omaha rooters was basketball player Marv Bratka's high jumping. He tied for first place in the event with two Hastings jumpers.

This was the first competitive jumping for Bratka since the 1959 outdoor season.

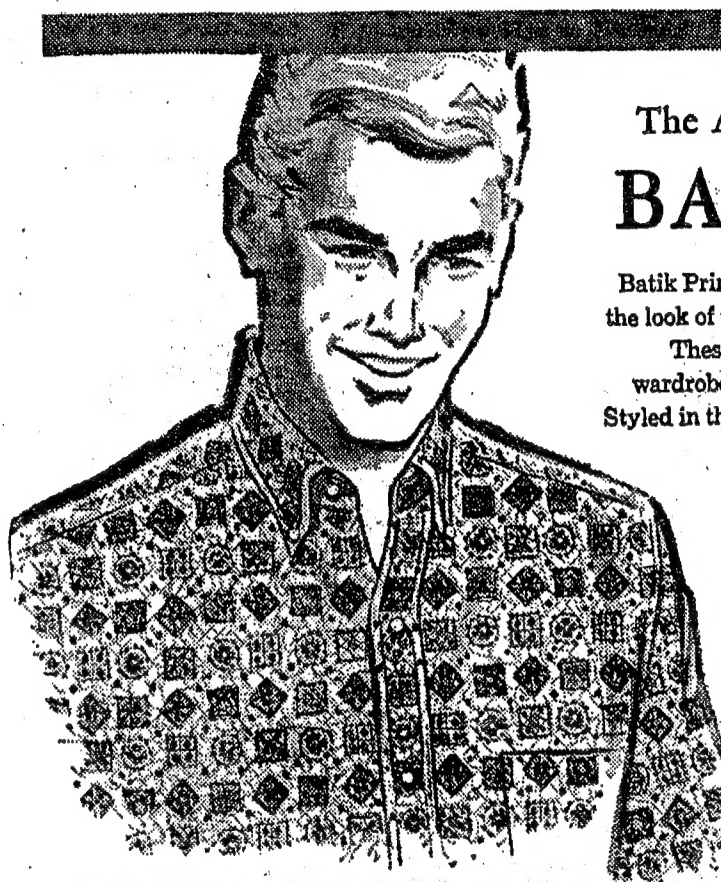

Gerry Richardson won the pole vault for the Indians with a leap of 11 feet.

Emporia Tough

Coach Lloyd Cardwell rates Emporia State the team to beat in the conference championships. He said Fort Hays State usually pushes them for the team title and should be tough also.

The only reported ineligibility is Jim Foster, the number one broad jumper.

The Indian trackmen met Simpson College and Morningside in a meet here last night.
